Keeping People & Pets Together

Helping cancer patients, the terminally ill and older people with a disability hold on to their companion pets at a time when they need them most

WHO WE ARE

When someone is faced with a cancer diagnosis, disability or terminal illness, their whole world changes. They have so much to worry about, so much to deal with and the one thing they need - especially those living alone – is the emotional support that their companion pet provides.

Rosie's Trust is Northern Ireland's only charity dedicated to caring for our beneficiaries' dogs and/or cats in their homes when they are no longer able to look after them independently.

Volunteers are the lifeblood of our service

Our wonderful volunteers provide help and support in all aspects of pet care, including feeding, grooming, exercising, play and stimulation, and vet visits.

SUPPORT OUR SERVICE

Our services offer peace of mind for our beneficiaries as they know Rosie's Trust will support them in the care of their companion pet for as long as they need us and resources permit.

We provide our services free of charge, 365 days of the year. We depend on donations to cover our service costs, and every penny gifted to us is carefully used.

Below are just a few ways you can support us.
