

Good morning,

I hope you are well?

As heart-breaking as this is people requiring cancer treatment in NI are holding off because they are afraid that they will have to let their pet go; the terminally ill are experiencing a lower quality and more stressful end of life while many older people in our communities are needlessly living alone because they are either struggling to look after their pet or have made the devastating decision to give them up.

Thanks to Rosie's Trust's amazing network of volunteers, we are able to support people with a cancer diagnosis, the terminally ill or older people with a disability by supporting them in looking after their pets in their own homes for as long as they need.

Rosie's Trust is a unique charity in NI dedicated to helping people hold on to their companion pets at a time when they need them most. We would love to increase our presence and impact in the Southern Trust area and are inviting referrals, including self-referrals, for people seeking support with the care of their companion pets.

We also always welcome applications from volunteers willing to give a couple of hours a week to walk a dog or the many other roles available at Rosie's Trust.

I would love the opportunity to meet you and your team to give you a more indepth insight into the range of support we can provide to help keep people and their pets together. Please feel free to contact me on 07718 483946 or laura@rosiestrust.org and there is also a whole host of information to be found at www.rosiestrust.org.

Warm wishes and thank you for reading,
